Dear Paul,

Thank you for your continued interest in my newsletter. I welcome suggestions for improvements and discussion topics. Please browse through the links in the right hand column. These links will connect you to a lot of very useful jewelry-related information.

Back to School - Back to Business

September is upon us, the children are back in school and it is back to business as usual. This is the time of year when tasks that were put off over the summer are back on the to-do list. One of those tasks should be having your jewelry appraisals updated. Jewelry and gemstones normally appreciate with time due to a variety of reasons. Jewelry appraisals should be updated every 3 to 5 years. Most people do not learn that their jewelry is undervalued until they have a claim. It is important to remember that almost all jewelry insurance policies will only pay up to the value listed in the appraisal. Also, when you have your jewelry updated it is a great time to add the new items that you acquired since your last appraisal.

Don't delay, call today and book an appointment (860) 391-3001.

Laboratory Grown Diamonds

Diamonds have been man-made in the laboratory since the 50's. Most of the production has been used for industrial purposes as diamond is an excellent conductor. Over the years there has been a push to synthesize diamonds for jewelry purposes. There are several methods, each with varying results. The fact remains, lab grown diamonds are here to stay and becoming common in the marketplace.

Engagement Ring Trends

from the Jewelry Information Center

Engagement ring trends have remained consistent over the past 10 years: classic has reigned. However, some brides are showing that they are ready to break away from traditional engagement rings and let their true personality and sense of style shine through. Here are the top engagement ring trends that range from classic to trendy:
